" Macduff .- See, who comes here? Malcolm .- My countryman; but yet I know him not. Macdoff .- My ever-gentle cousin, welcome hither. Malcolm .- 1 know him now."

Mr. McRae's letter on distribution was published in the Tarborough Southerner about the 28th November, and in the Standard on the 5th of Decem-

Mr. McRae himself, " having no political aspirations to gratify," but nevertheless wishing to see a distribution candidate in the field for Governor, called in his letter on some "practical farmer" to step forth and stake himself for "North-Carolina's share." The call was earnestly, as it was no doubt honestly made. It was a sort of "Macedonian cry" of "come over and help us"-and it was heard in Richmond County, which bordereth on the South Carolina line, about Sunday the 6th day of December. Mr. Leak was delighted to hear it. The appeal was to him; and no sooner was it heard than answered. He considered "if it were done, when 'tis done, then 'twere well it were done quickly." He considered also that it ought to be done, and that he was the person to do it. He took Mr. McRae at his word, as he had a right to do; and so at the very earliest moment, on Sunday, the 6th day of December-for the letter bears that date-he authorized Col. John W. Cameron, blue-light federalist and dark-lantern American, "to announce myself a Democratic candidate for Governor, at the ensuing Gubernatorial election." He expects to be a candidate "at the election"what he proposes to be in the meanwhile does not sufficiently appear. A friend at our elbow suggests that Mr. Leak was too willing-in too great a hurry; and that his haste to be in the field, which is indicated by his Sunday correspondence, has given the affair something of a farcical aspect. We differ with our friend. " Farcical" means, according to the dictionaries, "droll, ludicrous, ridiculous, illusory, deceptive." There is nothing "illusory" or "deceptive" about Mr. Leak's response. It bears upon its very face the impress of having been made in dead earnest; and its date-Sunday-is calculated to leave the inference that it was seriously pondered and done. It is not " far-

Another friend, who sympathises more with Mr. McRae than he does with Mr. Leak, is inclined to think that the latter has played Macbeth towards the former-that the call was made by Mr. McRae in "double trust" that it would not be answered; and declares, as the result of this conviction, that "This Duncan Hath borne his faculties so meek, hath been So clear in his great office, that his virtues Will plead like angels, trumpet-tongued, against The deep damnation of his taking off."

Our friend quotes Shakspeare, we admit, but that is all. Besides, Mr. Leak is not in favor of Shakspeare, but of " North-Carolina's share of the public lands;" and the only possible resemblance between him and Macbeth is, that Macbeth called the witches and they came, and Mr. McRae called for some one, and Mr. Leak came. That is all; and that, we take it, is a sufficient vindication of Mr. Leak in this respect. He is no Shakspearian character. Shakspeare never depicted any one who wrote or dated Gubernatorial letters on Sunday, or who was a candidate " at the ensuing election," but not before.

Mr. Leak has so often run for and sought office, and has so frequently obtained it, and is withal so great an idol with the masses of the people, for whom he has done so much, that it was not to be expected he would wait to be called upon on this occasion by more than one person. What every body concedes surely one person has the right to offer; and this being so, every body will thank Mr. McRae, as he may thank himself, for having brought Mr. Leak

"Thou canst not say I did it: never shake Thy gory locks at me."

WALKER AND NICARAGUA.-Gen. Walker landed at Punta Arenas with a small force, having boldly passthe United States' vessel Saratoga stationed near that place. The steamer Fashion carried Walker and his men from New Orleans. Her papers were all right apparently, and the Captain affected to believe that he was carrying a "couple of hundred coffee-planters" as emigrants to Nicaragua. The letter-writers consider Walker in no favorable position, at Punta Arenas, but he is said to be expecting considerable reinforcements from Mobile and New Orleans. Whether the commander of the steamer Saratoga was outwitted, or whether his instructions were not sufficiently clear to justify him in stopping the Fashion, does not appear.

Walker is a man of ability and resources, and will make a desperate effort to regain his lost power and to establish himself permanently as Governor of Nicaragua. His bearing as soon as he landed, was bold and defiant. Finding some of the Saratoga's officers on shore, he peremptorily ordered them on board their ship.

Is North-Carolina a Beggar? The first act of a beggar-of one asking alms, is to put up a poor mouth, by way of an appeal for sympathy, and then to enlarge on tattered garments, old shoes, cold weather and hard times. "Poor Tom's a-cold," saith Shakspeare; and North-Carolina is "creeping along in poverty and sorrow," saith the Editor of the Register. Hear what he says: "No matter for the Old North State. Leave her alone in her sack-cloth and sorrow. Poverty she has always been used to. Let her creep along still, honest and poor. Should she ever recover her rights, she might become proud-perhaps she might become also dishonest."

The Editor is talking about distribution. He thinks North Carolina has special, particular "rights"-"rights" in severalty in the public lands; and he looks upon the general government-the common government, to which North Carolina is a party, as an enemy-as a government fatally bent on treating her unjustly and dooming her to "poverty" and "sorrow." Is this true? Is North-Carolina indeed a beggar? Is she a " poor," "creeping," "sack-cloth" covered State? Has she "always" been poor? If so, no son of hers should proclaim the fact to the world. But it is not so. North Carolina is a wealthy and a powerful State. Her resources are as varied, as abundant and as valuable as those of any State in the Union; and her people are worth more to-day, per head, than the people of Massachusetts or any other New England State .-The statistics-counting her slaves at $500 eachwill prove it.

All intelligent persons and all honest honest politicians are tired of this whining about North Carolina's "poverty," as one of the tricks to sustain the distribution humbug. It is a trick-a pretence, and it is used in behalf of one of the most consummate humbugs and cheats that ever disturbed or annoyed an intelligent people. North Carolina is not poorshe is not a beggar. Her credit is better to-day, as it has always been, than the boasted credit of Virginia; and the taxes paid by her people are hardly felt, when compared with those which are paid by the people of that State.

Shame upon the partyism-shame upon the spirit of faction and of opposition to Democracy, which to advance selfish ends would undervalue and underrate the good old State, and place her in "sackcloth and sorrrow" a pensioner and a beggar at the footstool of federal power!

Affairs in Kansas-Gov. Walker-Mr. Senator

Douglas. The special session of the Kansas Legislature organized on the 8th, having been convened by Secretary Stanton, Acting Governor. He had recommended to the Legislature to make provision for taking the vote of the people on Monday next on the Lecompton Constitution, for and against; and, some of the despatches state, also on the Topeka Consti tution. But, however this may be, the l'erritory was in a state of intense excitement; and it was expected that the black Republicans, headed by Lane and Robinson, would use force to prevent a vote being given on the Lecompton Constitution in accordance with the provisions announced by Mr. Calhoun, the President of the Convention. The telegram from St. Louis is not very clear on these points, but enough is communicated to render it certain that the Lecompton and Topeka men are arrayed against each other in attitudes of fierce and bitter hostility. The New York Times, a black republican paper, noticing the condition of things in Kansas, says:

"There is danger, however that much more violent measures will be taken to prevent the success of the Lecompton movement. Gen. Lane seems to be again in the ascendant, and from the tone of his harangues and the demonstrations he has already made, there can be little doubt of a violent outbreak under his direction against the authors of the Lecompton scheme, which may drive them from the Territory, and will certainly prevent the election fixed for the 21st. Gov. Waiker has said from the beginning that the people of Kansas would not tolerate the imposition upon them of this Lecompton Constitution,-that they would resist it by violence and fight the federal troops if they should be sent to dragoon them into submission. The course of events in the Territory now confirms the truth of these predictions. The news of Stanton's removal for having called the Legislature together will tend still further to exasperate the public mind; and by the day of election we should not be at all surprised to hear that the Territory is involved in all the horrors of civil war.'

The truth is, the black Republicans of Kansas are determined to have no Constitution but the Topeka instrument; and if the Lecompton Constitution had been submitted to them they would have voted it down. It remains to be seen whether they will triumph over law and order, and over the efforts of the President to maintain peace in the Territory.

Secretary Stanton, who convened this black Republican Legislature, has been promptly removed by the President, and Gen. Denver appointed in his place. But what can the new acting Governor do? Can be disperse the Legislature or arrest its action?

Gov. Walker is in Washington, and is said to be quite positive and emphatic in his opposition to the policy of the President in relation to Kansas. We think he has trifled long enough with the patience of the President and of the American people; but he no doubt wishes to be removed, so as to make capital for himself and his adherents. It seems he will not resign.

Judge Douglas, we presume, has ere this introduced his "enabling act"-a bill similar to that of Mr. Toombs at the last session, but containing an additional clause providing for the submission of the Constitution to be framed to the people. He asserts and argues that the President, in favoring the admission of Kansas with the Lecompton Constitu tion, has committed a "fundamental" error; and there is, therefore, no reasonable probability that the President and himself will be able to agree on

We have read the recent speech of Judge Douglas with much attention, and with every disposition to do him justice. We are by no means satisfied with his positions and arguments, and we do not like the tone which pervades some portions of the speech .-We deeply regret that he felt it to be his duty to differ with the President, and to throw himself in the way of the new State claiming admission with a Constitution which appears to have been legally and regularlyframed; and we are mortified to see him commended for his course by the freesoil and abolition journals. Judge Douglas has spoken ingeniously and ably, as he always does, but not conclusively; and such we believe will be the judgment of a large majority of the national Democratic party. We await events. We are not eager to denounce and separate finally from a statesman who has been so long and so honorably identified with the national Democracy, and who has struck so many good and true blows for our rights. But we mean to stand by the President, because we believe he occupies the true ground on this question; and we shall do this, whoever may oppose or desert him .-The Southern people are neither ungenerous nor unjust. They never abandon a friend until they know he is about to become an enemy; and though not more exacting than a prudent regard for their vital interests requires, yet they will fellowship no one, however faithful and friendly heretofore, who has the smell even of black Republicanism on his gar-

UTAH .- The latest news from Uath is to the 7th of October. The attitude of the Mormons is peculiary hostile and threatening. Brigham Young, in a series of discourses delivered before large audiences of the Saints in Salt Lake City, had distinctly avowed his determination to destroy provision and forage, and lay the Territory waste, rather than permit the entrance of the troops. The faint-hearted among the Mormons are warned to leave, under penalty of death if they attempt to thwart the ends of the leaders. Brigham's programme appears to be indorsed to the fullest extent by Heber Kimball, John Taylor and others among the prominent men in Utah. The accounts of recent atrocities committed by the Mormons, present a sorry picture. There is nothing further from the Government Expedition by this arrival.

LATE FROM INDIA .- The Europa brings two weeks' later intelligence from India. Lucknow was safe, and Generals Havelock and Outram were both in the Residency, and though the enemy had gathered in great strength in the vicinity, yet, within a few days, the British would be able to count seven thousand bayonets-a force amply sufficient to disperse the mutineers. The Delhi fugitives had been intercepted and routed by General Greathead. A military commission had been organized to try the King of Delhi and two more of his sons were summarily shot. Reinforcements from England were beginning to arrive. Fifiteen troop ships had reached various Indian ports with about 6,000 men on board.

CONGRESS

Washington, Dec 15, 1857. SENATE.-In the Senate the death of Mr. Bell of New Hampshire, having been formally announced, eulogies were delivered, resolutions of respect adopted, and the Senate adjourned.

WEDNESDAY, December 16, 1857. Senate.—Mr. Gwin submitted a resolution calling upon the President for copies of all the correspondence of Governor Walker, relating to Kansas affairs. Mr. Allen submitted a resolution containing a list of all standing committees. This was strongly opposed by the Republican Senators, on the ground that they would be in the minority upon all important committees. The resolution and list was finaladopted by a strict party vote-30 to 19. Mr. Green made a speech in reply to Mr. Douglas' speech of a previous day. Mr. Douglas responded, defining his views on the Lecompton movement.

House.-The House took possession of the new Hall to-day, when great dissatisfaction was manifested on the part of the reporters of the press, in regard to the poor accomodations offered them. A communication was received from the clergy of the District, tendering their services to open the session daily with prayer. Seats were then alotted to members. Mr. Cox, of Ohio, moved that twenty thousand extra copies of the President's message be printed. He also made an elaborate speech, condemning the Lecompton movement as unconstitutional, but made no direct condemnation of slavery.

Later from Kansas. Sv. Louis, Dec. 14 .- A special session of the Kansas Legislature was organized on the 8th inst. Acting Governor Stanton, in his message, says: "In consequence of recent events, I find myself compelled by a sense of duty, to call you together, that you may adopt, by prompt legislation, measures to avert the calamities which threaten the public peace." He recommends the passage of an act directing that an election be held, under different officers, on the same day, and at the same places as prrovided by the proclamation of Hon. John Calhoun, President of the late Convention, and authorizing the people to vote for the Constitution in either form, as resented by the Convention, and also against the Constitution in both forms. He moreover recommends the passage of a law making fraudulent returns of votes felony, and prescribing suitable pun-Intense excitement prevails in the Territory. It is probable that the parties opposed to the Lecompton movement will not permit the holding of an election. Lane with 300 men, is encamped near Lecompton, and threatens to drive Mr Calhoun and the members of the Convention out of the Territory. There has been no outbreak thus far.

Arrival of the Star of the West .- Landing of Walker in Nicaragua.-Later from California and New York, Dec. 14.-The steamer Star of the West arrived this morning, bringing intelligence of the landing of Walker in Nicaragua with three hundred men.

A lieutenant of the U. S. sloop-of-war Saratoga, who was ashore, was ordered by Walker to return to the ship. The British and American ships of war will blockade San Juan, and station a force there to prevent

Walker passing up the river.

The election in Oregon resulted in the complete success of the Constitution, the rejection of slavery and the exclusion of free negroes from the territory. CALIFORNIA.

Lieut. Beal had arrived, mith his camels, in California. All well.
